Abstract

Ethnic-racial socialization and ethnic identity have been found to be related with youth outcomes, however, there is little research that examined both parent-reported and youth-reported ethnic-racial socialization. This talk presents a study examining how ethnic-racial socialization influences ethnic identity among Asian American youths, and how this ethnic identity in turn predicts depressive symptoms and school performance among youth. These relationships were examined separately for parent-reported and youth-reported ethnic-racial socialization. Findings from this study can be used to inform practice and interventions with immigrant Asian American families.

Biosketch

Dr. Tae Yeun KIM completed her doctorate studies at the School of Social Service Administration, University of Chicago and is currently an Assistant Professor in the Department of Social and Behavioural Sciences, City University of Hong Kong. Her research agenda is to 1) understand the etiology and underlying mechanisms of youth developmental outcomes, 2) examine racial/ethnic disparities in youth development, and 3) develop appropriate preventive interventions to promote healthy development of disadvantaged youth, such as ethnic-minority/immigrant youth.

After the Salon, light lunch with drink will be provided for SS faculty members and research students. Interested participants must make reservation via email (violette.wong@cityu.edu.hk) before 30 April 2019.
